

Diane's Reflecting on William's Poetry.

Diane wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills
But then she stood still and proud, realising,
I need some more blood pressure pills.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way
White van man arrived with Merlot wine
His parting words "Have a nice day".

The birds in Saxon Park fluttered and flew
Their little eyes sparkling with glee
She thought I've a lot of typing work to do
I'll ask Meghan to do the hoovering for me.

For oft when on her moquette couch she'd lie
In vacant or in pensive mood
Diane realised William's popular poem doesn't Mention the beauty of the sky
But also, I'll get the family some lunchtime food.

Mr Michael 's Potboiler Poetry

(C) Sept 2020